Capture all angles in the nursery with the new Uniden wireless baby monitor

A leader in wireless communication, Uniden, has extended its award-winning Baby Watch range with a new digital wireless baby video monitor including two cameras (BW3002).

The new BW3002 includes a compact 5.8cm digital wireless monitor, with a secure digital crystal-clear display, giving parents and caregivers peace of mind while viewing or listening as baby is sleeping. The portable monitor also includes intuitive features such as a walkie talkie function, allowing parents and caregivers to calm and reassure bub if unsettled. It can also be used to communicate to others in the home while tending to their baby.

The easy-to-use, adjustable clamp cameras provide flexibility when setting up viewing points around the nursery, meaning those little moments can be captured from any angle. Switch between different camera views effortlessly via the monitor device.

The monitor can also observe the room environment using the featured temperature display with a temperature range alert, flagging sudden changes to comfort levels in the nursery.

Parents can use the two cameras to assist with settling bub at nap time by playing the selection of lullabies stored on the device, while keeping watch from the monitor.

With a compact design, the monitor and cameras are easy to pack away to use on holiday or take to the grandparents for a night away, and can be set-up and ready to use in a matter of minutes. All Uniden Baby Watch monitors have a digitally encrypted signal to ensure a secure connection.
