New Uniden UHF radios help outdoor adventurers stay connected

Uniden's new UH600 radio series are a must-have for users wanting to stay in touch while exploring the great outdoors. When hiking or camping in remote areas without mobile reception, the UH600 radios are a reliable way of communicating with family and friends.

Built for Australia's rugged conditions, the UH600 series offer high grade performance in a lightweight, compact design available in 1-Watt, 1.5-Watt and 2-Watt variations for extended range. The UH620 series can communicate up to a 13km+ range allowing users to stay connected on their next adventure even in the most remote locations without mobile reception. The radio includes multi-purpose features such as an in-built LED light providing added safety and convenience, particularly when hiking at night.

The UH600 series provides adventurers with clear, uninterrupted radio transmission from 80 UHF channels. Users can enjoy up to 20 hours talk time before recharging via the convenient and cost-saving micro-USB port using the included rechargeable batteries. The Shared Channel Quiet Filter ensures the radio stays quiet when sharing a busy channel, only allowing transmissions from radios using the same code perfect for kids and families.

Other features include a large channel display with backlit for easy viewing and Auto Squelch, which blocks out unwanted background noises for crystal clear messages. Carabiner and belt clips enable users to securely fasten their radio to clothing or backpacks, making it easy to reach for assistance as required.

The new feature-packed radios include the UH610, UH615 and UH620 series available in single and dual configurations, and the UH615 twin pack.
